Round table	Round Table: Culture Based Development Book Launch
Chair: Annie Tubadji Discussant:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • This round table presents and discussed the new Culture Based Development (CBD) book and its underlying paradigm. This will serve as platform that will catalyze independent and original CBD research, especially among young scholars. The discussion will offer a comprehensive overview of the Culture Based Development paradigm (By the author, Annie Tubadji) and critical evaluations of the book from old institutional perspective and discuss the CBD application in modeling AI, and the interplay of reason and emotion in economics (Discussions by leading evolutionary institutional economists). This round table aims to equip scholars with the CBD paradigm toolkit, beneficial not only in AI studies but also in broader future applications (As demonstrated by over 50 articles on CBD, see: Annie Tubadji (0000-0002-6134-3520) - ORCID).the discussants, esteemed experts in institutionalist economics, will assess the relevance and merit of this novel paradigm within the broader context of institutionalist thought. They will provide insights into the unique contributions of the CBD paradigm and identify areas for further development for scholars interested in applying it to their work. The invited special discussants are: • Prof. John Hall: Former Vice President of the Association of Institutional Thought and Board of Directors member of the Association for Evolutionary Economics • Prof. Bill Waller: Editor of the Journal of Economic Issues and Laureate of the EAEPE Veblen-Commons Award • Prof. Wolfram Elsner: Former President of EAEPE and international authority on evolutionary complexity economics
